PIGATO “BRAIE”

The “Braie” vineyard is the unique link that strongly binds ourselves to the history of our winegrowers and allows us to bring back our childhood memories, when this vineyard was ploughed by oxen. This vine is grown in an area where weather conditions are perfect making it ideal for this type of cultivation. The vines show the signs of the time gone by and although wine production from these vines is very poor, they are not deliberately removed because every year they give us scions which give then vine cuttings which we use in our new graftings.

The fermentation process occurs within the grapes skin and indigenous yeasts for 48 hours and by keeping temperature under control. The end product gives absolutely matchless emotions than any other vineyard.
